OverviewCardGoalTypesHistorySortingClassificationOnlineA catalog card is an individual entry in a library catalog containing bibliographic information, including the author's name, title, and location. Eventually the mechanization of the modern era brought the efficiencies of card catalogs. It was around 1780 that the first card catalog appeared in Vienna. It solved the problems of the structural catalogs in marble and clay from ancient times and the later codex--handwritten and bound--catalogs that were manifestly inflexible and presente...
